REPLY TO THE INFIDEL ATTACK OF THE INDEPENDENT ON CHRISTIANITY.

He thinks by his reason and senses. But reason as Progress and all the world knows is an invisible spiritual thing quite out of the reach of the senses, of feeling, sight, hearing, smell and taste. Therefore as reason is an invisable mysterious thing and its logical laws direct thought, also such, and thinking and thoughts of the same character such a wise man as Progress who trusts on his senses and reason so much and opposed to mysteries, must certainly in his operations of clearing, discard this great mystery of nature, or confess to be very inconsistent in his arguments against mystery. If he confesses to discard the mystery of reason, then he confesses himself to be a fool, for Webster says a fool is destitute of reason. But if he still relies on the mysterious faculty of reason then he must acknowledge his objections to mystery in revelation to be very unreasonable. In the first instance all his personal pretentions are gone. In the latter instance his argumentation are stamped as foolishness. Now which of the two progress prefer? We suppose for his own credit the latter. But the latter is the platform from which he attacks. If he tears that down his objections fall to the ground. Now as to the senses they are also of the most mysterious things with which man is gifted. We have them but no one ever understood them and were able to explain the mysteriousness of their nature. To clear their mystery in its very nature is impossible, and we apply the same alternative in these as in the former to our opponent.

Now comes another question with greater difficulties still. If Progress admits the mysteries of reason and senses, how can he with mysterious faculties clear away other mysteries? Mystery against mystery is a contradiction and to make clear by what is in itself unclear is as much as to bring light by and out of darkness. Did our Progress ever think of this, if so he was fooling himself and his friends by his argumentation, but if he did not think of these contradictions, he made his objections in thoughtless ignorance.

Now if reason and the senses cannot comprehend themselves and the mysteries of nature it is foolish to think that by them we should comprehend every thing in revelation, or that the understanding of reveled truth was alone dependent on human reason. And why is it that human reason understands so little about itself and about nature and nature's God, and why is it that that what it professes to know is so often contradicted by the reasoning of others? Is it not a fact that human wisdom in all branches had to pass through systems of errors in all past ages and is not settled yet. The reason of this does not alone lay in the phenomena and their unguided investigation, but also in man and the defectiveness of his comprehending faculties and their preparations. Of this Cicero in his natura Deorum says: 'Wisdom selects only a few and flies the multitude' and Plato in his work, De Republic, asserts: 'None is prepared for Wisdom who from nature has a cowardly, mean forgetful soul, but only such a one, who from nature easily remembers is highminded desirous of learning and befriended to the charities.'

As experience teaches the truth of such defectiveness in man and his mind, and as infidelity has no key to unlock this mystery, we must return to the Bible for information, and that points to sin, as the sole element of this defectiveness. And with sin an adverse spirit took control over heart and mind. Now in the nature of the case infinite things are difficult to be comprehended by finite minds in its best state, because being so differently constituted, this difficulty multiplies a thousand fold more after man's infection by sin and its adverse spirit. And if our faculties of mind are so much impaired and weakened, that it is even unreliable in natural wisdom it would be quite out of place to make it the only means in its corrupted state to be the key into revelation and its comprehension. Spiritual things can alone can be comprehended in a spiritual way, and holy things with holy hearts and minds. It is therefore unnatural and unreasonable to judge the Bible by sensual reasoning and our most holy faith, by ungodly hearts and minds; but as this is really our situation we must protest against this unfairness with the words of St Paul, I Corinth, II chapter, 14 verse: 'But the natural man receiveth not the things of the spirit of God for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.' To this the spirit of God himself is necessary. Our opponent is right, when he thinks that things could not be believed by a developed mind except understood first. To this purpose revelation was made. And the very name of theology testifies to the truth which means according to Webster: 'The science of God and his relations to his creatures, &c.' Could it be a science if nothing was known or understood? It is the very purpose of revelation to speed light in our darkness, it must therefore certainly realize itself as light in our hearts and understanding. But to effect all this revelation brings its own agency along to do it. This agency is the holy spirit of God, for as man's spirit alone can enlighten about the will and thoughts of a man so can the spirit of God alone make clear his will and thoughts. This is testified by Christ himself, John XIV: 'But the comforter, which is the holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have said unto you.' With revelation we have also the key to its understanding and the teacher of its doctrines. We must accept this key and this Godsend teacher, and by doing so, we alone come to understanding and faith, although a perfect knowledge can alone be expected in the life beyond. God gives us at least so much insight into the mysteries of revelation as we need for our faith in our struggles below. It is therefore a misrepresentation of revelation if our opponent speaks of things or doctrines as never to be understood.

This influence of the holy spirit and its enlightened powers must take control first of our heart and the natural faculties of our mind before we can really understand and believe it. This is the prerequisit, that makes light possible. Will infidels now understand the difference in this controvercy of comprehension? But perhaps they say, if understanding comes alone by the influence of the spirit on heart and mind and as such spirit is to be especially given knowledge must at least to a great many be outside of their reach? No, not except by their own fault. The invitation and promises are general. Also the work of the spirit is general. But as they are conditioned on our acceptance, this work can be interfered with by ourself. In order to cut off all excuse and to bring the divine knowledge within reach of all, the holy spirit commences first to enlighten our conscience by the law, in order to bring us to the necessary knowledge of our sin and darkness as the moral evil, to which we get an inright alone, if we enter through the door of conscience, as unlocked by the law. But after this is effected and our wickedness revealed, it applies the gospel as the glad tidings of forgiveness through our Lord and Savior and leads us thereby into the innermost sanctuary of God's love and mercy, as connected with and manifested by the doctrines trinity, incarnation, redemption, sanctification and salvation. Now progress did you ever allow this holy spirit to unlock your conscience and did you ever enter this door to take a view at the depravity of your heart and the sinfulness of your life? If not, you have missed the very beginning of light, and if you don't learn A you can not learn and understand B. If you never come to a knowledge of sin, you cannot recieve a knowledge of the forgiveness, as the very light and life of the gospel. If you never repented, you could never believe, as Christian belief is only a work of the Holy Ghost in the heart of the penitent.

If infidels would investigate their consciences better, not in the light of foolish imaginations, but with the law of God, the result would indeed be different. What they now mock they would everlastingly praise, and what they now descry as darkness and unreasonable, would appear to them as the greatest light and wisdom. It is a great pity for men talking all the time about light and sit so deeply in darkness about themselves and judging Christianity so shamefully without ever trying to enter and test its merits. Christian experience the only real criterion and to this Infidelity is challenged. Christianity is not doctrine alone but also life.

(The end week after next)
Rejoice—the end cometh. Comp.

A traveler at Kinsai was entertained by the Viceroy, the Amir Kustai, and this was one of the amusements:

"That same night a juggler appeared, who was one of the Great Kaan's slaves, and the Amir said to him: 'Come and show us some of your wonders!' Upon this he took a wooden ball with seven holes in it, through which long thongs were passed, and laying hold of one of these, slung it into the air. It went so high that we lost sight of it altogether. (It was the hottest season of the year, and we were outside in the middle of the palace court.) There now remained only a short end of a thong in the conjurer's hand, and he desired one of the boys who assisted him to hold of it and mount. He did so, climbing by the thong, and we lost sight of him. The conjurer then called to him three times but getting no answer, he snatched up a knife, as if in a great rage, laid hold of the thong and disappeared in his turn. By and by he threw down one of the boy's hands, then a foot, then the trunk, and, last of all the head! Lastly he came down himself, puffing and a blowing, and with his clothes all bloody, kissed the ground before the Amir, and said something to him in Chinese. The Amir gave some order in reply, and our friend then took the lad's limbs, laid them together in their places and gave them a kick, when presto! there was the boy, who got up and stood before us? All this astonished me beyond measure!'

Our first mother was like the night before the battle—the Eve of great offence.

THE NUISANCE OF BEST PARLORS.

Almost every American house possesses one of these dreadful altars, erected to what unknown goddess it is impossible to guess. Musty smells belong to this deity, stiffness, angles, absence of sunlight. The visitor, entering, sees written above the portal: "Who enters here abandons conversation." What is there to talk about in a room as dark as the Domdaniel, except where one crack in a reluctant shutter reveals a stand of wax flowers under a glass, and a dimly descried hostess, who evidently only waits your departure to extinguish that solitary ray? The voice instinctively hushes; the mind finds itself barren of ideas. A few dreary commonplaces are exchanged, then a rise, a rustle, the door is gained and the light of the blessed sun, you glance up in passing—flip goes the blind; inner darkness is again resumed; and you thank your stars that you have done your duty by the Browns for at least a twelve month.

And yet, upon this apartment, which she hates, and all her acquaintances hate, poor Mrs. Brown has lavished time and money enough to make two rooms charming. For ugly things cost as much as pretty ones,—often more. And costly ugliness is, as Mrs. Brown would tell you, a 'great responsibility to take care of.' What with the carpet which musn't get faded; the mirrors which musn't get fly specked, the gilding which musn't get tarnished, there is nothing for it but to shut the room up to darkness and all dull influences. And as families are like flies, and will follow the sun, the domestic life comes to be led anywhere rather than in the best parlor, and the taboo which Mrs. Brown proclaims is easily enforced.

And yet this very Mrs Brown is quick to recognize the difference, when in other people's homes she is shown a cosy and pleasant room. She sits on a chintz sofa in her velvet and ermine, and glances half enviously at the tinted walls hung with photographs, at the sparkling little fire in the grate, the windows gay with sun and green things, the book case and tables loaded with volumes. 'How I admire an open fire,' she says. 'But doesn't it make a great deal of dust? And your plants, too—I can't think how you make them grow so well in a parlor.'

'A little Croton and plenty of sun is all the secret,' she is told.

'Oh, but how dreadfully faded your carpet must get!' she goes on. 'Such quantities of books, too. Well, I should like to have such things.'

It does not occur to the good lady that for the price of one of those useless mirrors which costs her so much anxiety and rubbing with chamois skin, a choice company of poets, philosophers and sages could be won to sit forever at her side, informing her with their wisdom. Or that for a tube of the same her fireless grate would sparkle with cannel coal for a winter long.

People having the right to live pretty much as they please, so long as they violate no law of the land, it would matter little except that there are so many Browns and so many best parlors that society is seriously affected thereby. For a system which necessitates great and troublesome changes in family arrangements whenever a guest comes, tends to narrowness and inhospitality. If the covers must be taken off the furniture, the plated spoons go up stairs and the silver ones come down, the best china be lifted from a top shelf upon the arrival of each friend, be sure that friend will seldom arrive. Only when what Mrs Stowe calls a 'good liberal average' is established as a rule over all houses, will hearty interchange of social courtesies begin, and the communion of friends, face to face, be regarded as a pleasure rather than a toil.

To those of us who have been tasting the summer in the sweet breath of the country, our homes will seem dull and straitened enough as we re enter them. Now is the time, before the old habitual scales blind our eyes, to look about with anointed vision, and see how these homes can be brightened and broadened—made more like that lovely out door home to which nature welcomes each new comer. Above all, let us cast out the best parlor. To the sacred enclosure once called by that name, let us bring our dantier tasks of letter writing, needle work, study. Let the walls be beautified with every simple ornament within our reach—the windows opened to receive the sun, and vines and roses set to catch his shining.—Scribner's Monthly.

Commend us to such preachers as the Rev. Robert Collyer, of Chicago. His congregation gathered on and about the ruins of their church on Sunday, and Mr. Collyer mounted a stone which had fallen from the centre, for his pulpit. After preaching a short but touching sermon, with no whines or snivels, he concludes as follows:

It was a day or two before I began to look and think with myself what I could say to these, my children. At last it came to me in one word—and this is what I have to say about it. If you will stay by me I will stay with you; if you will work with me, I will work with you, and we will make the best fight we can against this adverse situation. I am not going to be a burden to you. You cannot find a cheaper man anywhere than I will be. I preached seven years for seventy five cents a year I won't take any more than that if you can't spare any more. I don't mean to task Unity Church, but I mean to stick by you if you will stick by me. Never fear for me, I can get along well enough. People will give me more for a lecture than they will give some folks, and if the worst comes to the worst, I can make as good horse shoes and nails as and man in Chicago.

JOHNNY APPLESEED'S HUMOR.

We must not leave the reader under the impression that this man's life, so full of hardships and perils, was a gloomy or unhappy one. There is an element of human pride in all martyrdom, which if it does not soften the pains, stimulates the power of endurance. Johnny's life was made serenely happy by the conviction that he was living like the primitive Christians. Nor was he devoid of a keen humor, to which he occasionally gave vent, as the following will show. Toward the latter part of Johnny's career in Ohio an itinerant missionary found his way to the village of Mansfield, and preached to an open air congregation. The discourse was tediously lengthy, and unnecessarily severe upon the sin of extravagance, which was beginning to manifest itself among the pioneers by an occasional indulgence in the carnal vanities of calico and store tea. There was a good deal of the Pharisaic leaven in the preacher, who frequently emphasized his discourse by the inquiry. 'Where now is there a man who, like the primitive Christians, is traveling to heaven barefooted and clad in coarse raiment?' When this interrogation had been repeated beyond all endurance, Johnny rose from the log on which he was reclining, and advanced to the speaker, he placed one of his bare feet upon the stump which served for a pulpit, and pointing to his coffee sack garment, he quietly said, 'Here's your primitive Christian!' The well clothed missionary hesitated and stammered and dismissed the congregation. His pet antithesis was destroyed by Johnny's personal appearance, which was far more primitive than the preacher cared to copy.

Some of the pioneers seemed to think that Johnny's humor was the cause of an extensive practical joke; but it is generally conceded now that a wide spread annoyance was really the result of his belief that the offensive odored weed known in the west as dog fennel, but more generally styled the May weed, possessed valuable antimalarial virtues. He procured some seeds of the plant in Pennsylvania, and sowed them in the vicinity of every house in the region of his travels. The consequence was the successive flourishing crops of the weed spread over the whole country, and caused almost as much trouble as the disease it was intended to ward off; and to this day the dog fennel introduced by Johnny Appleseed, is one of the worst grievances of the Ohio farmers.—Harper's Magazine.

PAPER CLOTHING.

In civilized countries the manufacturing of paper into various articles of clothing has only been the business of a very brief period, but among barbarous people it is an industry that has been cultivated for years. With us, the employment still remains in its infancy, and it has taken us many years to master the difficulties attending its introduction. At first, our manufacturers confined their productions almost entirely to collars, cuffs, frills, and similar minor articles. Prejudice having been in a great measure overcome, our inventors extended their area of production to many fabrics of universal use, but requiring greater strength and pliability than those worn about the neck and arms. The garments made by this process failed to answer the requirements of our day, and were not received with general favor.

At this juncture of affairs, it remains for an English inventor to solve the difficulty, and give us a really serviceable paper fabric. It is a mixture of various animal and vegetable substances, the former being wool, silks and skins; the latter, flax, jute, hemp, and cotton. These articles are reduced to a fine pulp, bleached, and then felted by means of machinery. The mixture of these several substances produces a fabric of wonderful flexibility and strength. It can be sewed together with a machine as readily as woven fabrics, and makes as strong a seam.

This paper is of a very serviceable nature, and is made into table cloths, napkins, handkerchiefs, pants, curtains, shirts, and other articles of dress. The petticoats made from this felted paper are of very elaborate design and wonderful beauty. They are either printed or stamped, and bear so close a resemblance to linen or cotton goods of like description as to almost defy the scrutiny of the ablest experts. The stamped open work skirts display a delicacy of pattern that would be almost impossible to imitate by any ordinary skill with the needle. Imitation blankets, and chintz for beds, furniture, or curtains, are also made very cheaply. Embossed table cloths and figured napkins made of felted paper, so closely resemble the genuine, damask linen as to be palmed off upon the unsuspecting as the genuine article.

In Germany paper napkins have been used for several years. Their cost is but a trifle, and they pay for themselves before they are required to be cast aside.

Felted paper is capable of being made into lace, fringe, and trimming; and for these several purposes it is unequaled in point of cheapness and durability. Imitation leather is also made from the same material, which is perfectly impervious to water. It is soft and pliable, and is a useful fabric for covering furniture, making into shoes, for belts, and many other purposes.

In China and Japan paper clothing has long been worn by the inhabitants. It is very cheaply produced there, a good paper coat costing only ten cents, while the expenses of an entire suit is limited to twenty-five cents.

PAPERS WITH FOREIGN BOWELS.

Col. Albert Ciark, of the St. Albans Messenger and Transcript, thus sharply criticizes the patent outsides and insides which have come so generally into vogue, and which he characterizes with the above title.

"Within a very few years companies have been organized in some of the western cities and in New York for editing and printing one entire side of a full sheet, and then sending it out as other city publishers do, to actual subscribers, they furnish it to certain country offices cheaper than regular publishers can purchase their blank paper. The companies can afford to do this because they secure remunerative advertisements, for many business men are green enough to suppose that they enjoy a tremendous circulation. The same half printed sheet is furnished to a large number of different offices, so that the cost of labor and composition is saved. To suit all the different shades of opinion, a certain number are worked off containing one or two strong republican articles, then another batch with those articles left out and strong democratic articles, written by the same pen, inserted, so that at length these ready made opinion moulds have actually advertised their productions as either republican, democratic or independent, to suit purchasers.

"Such an accommodating disposition would hardly secure them much patronage if they had to go before the sturdy people for it, but it serves them a profitable end, since their only patrons are those country publishers of prostituted principles, who are willing to deal out the product of such hash mills at second hand. What is it that people take a paper for? Partly for its news, partly for its views, and partly for its advertisements. And yet the news of these insides is always a week or more older than that of legitimate papers; their views are those of men who publicly proclaim that they ride three horses in different directions at the same time, and their advertisements are of necessity all foreign from the locality where the paper purports to issue.

"Therefore, so far as one entire half of the paper is concerned, it falls far below the standard of interest which freshness and newness always give, and as for the other half, it is what might be expected from men who find it impossible to make a whole newspaper, and are therefore willing not only to deceive their patrons but to disgrace the profession, which has always been accredited with some principles and some brains, by going into the market to hawk about other people's wares. So far as my knowledge goes, not a single newspaper establishment in the country of any recognized standing and influence has adopted the system, and in a great majority of cases the papers are dated at little villages where in fact they are not issued and are issued from places where they are not in sufficient demand to support an establishment. They are a fraud on advertisers, a fraud upon subscribers, a fraud upon the government in the matter of postage, and a scandal on the honest and laborious press. They are half and half of that which is old enough to be stale, and that which is flat enough to be dishwater, and never, since Barnum attached the tail of a fish to the body of an Egyptian mummy and advertised it as 'the beautiful, original and genuine siren of the sea,' has a greater humbug been put before the world."

The way sugar was made perfectly white was found out in a curious way. A hen that had gone through a clay mud puddle, went with her muddy feet into a sugar house. It was observed by some one that wherever the tracks were, the sugar was whitened. This led to some experiments. The result was, that the clay came to be used in refining sugar. It is in this way: The sugar is put in earthen jars, shaped as you see the sugar is; The large ends are upward. The jar is filled with sugar, the clay put over the top and kept wet. The moisture goes through the sugar, and drops from the hole in the small end of the jar. This makes the sugar perfectly white.

Humanity is akin. There is no doubt of it. The skeptic can find the proof written in letters of love all over the ashes of Chicago. Wherever the story of the great conflagration has been told, the heart of mankind has responded to the feeling of universal brotherhood. Men, women, and children have testified to the sentiment of sympathy. Even great corporations have felt the thrill of benevolence. Bankers have opened their hearts, beggars have pawned to give. A man, in St. Louis gave all he had; a little negro contributed his uttermost. Time When the Canary Islands were starving we sent food; when Ireland was famishing we divided our stores with her hungry people. Aid has been rendered to the Persians. Africa enjoys our contributions. Is there any doubt that humanity is akin? If there is, the unbeliever should be prayed for early and late.

Two Dollars a year, in advance.

Massillon, Wednesday, November 1.

Gen. Robert Anderson, the hero of fort Sumter, who had command of that important fort when the rebellion broke out, died at Nice, in France, where he had gone to recruit his health on the 26th ult. Gen. Anderson was a plain, unostentatius man, a faithful, patriot c officer, and when his meager forces were attacked by the army of rebels consisting of thousands, the little squad of men under his command made the best possible defense. But they were overpowered by numbers, and short of provisions, as assistance could not reach them in consequence of the enemy's guns. Gen. A. will long be remembered as a true hero.

The twenty ninth annual session of the Grand Division of the Sons of Templars of Ohio convened at New berg on the 25th ult and was in session two days. A goodly number of delegates were in attendance, and the right spirit pervaded the proceedings. Hopeless despondency had no place there. On the second day the following officers were elected for the coming year: L B Silver, of Salem G W P; G S Tumbling, Toledo, G W A; John Gundry, Cincinnati, G S; Joseph Gladden, Perryville, T. The next semiannual Grand Division is to be held in April, 1872, at Springfield, Clark county; the annual session at Perryville, Ashland county. It was recommended that application be made for an act of incorporation. Among the delegates appointed to attend the national Division was Mr. B. Raser, of this place, an old and faithful temperance man. Bro. Silver, the chief officer elect, is an earnest worker in the temperance cause, and his energy will stir up the fraternity, of which he is now the head, as he dont take hold of anything without a determination to succeed. The following resolutions among others, were adopted:

Resolved, That any political party that refuses to put prohibition in its platform, or continues to nominate dram sellers or dram drinkers for office, is unworthy the support of the Sons of Temperance.

Resolved, That our order cannot, from its nature, be a political party, but as an educational temperance institution we have a right to recommend to the voters within our organization to use their ballots as well as prayers and speeches for the overthrow of the drunkard-making traffic.

Hawkins, the Mormon charged with adultery, has been tried and found guilty. The judge sentenced him to three years imprisonment at hard labor and assessed a fine of $500. Other Mormons have been arrested for murder, among who is Brigham Young. It looks as if hard times are overtaking these Mormon chiefs. They have been violating the laws long enough, and it is quite time that a few examples were made. It is the right policy to begin on the chiefs. When they are punished lesser sinners will try to behave better.

Boss Tweed, as he is familiarly called, the head sachem of the Tammany tribe at New York, who is freely denounced in a large number of the papers of that city as being the greatest thief in the place, has been arrested by the proper officer, and notified to appear at court. He is at large on bail to the amount of a million dollars. Whether he can be convicted or not remains to be seen. He is charged with stealing several millions of dollars and when a thief has such a quantity of money he can buy a good many men, even if they are officers of the law. Mr. O'Conor, the prosecuting attorney, is reputed one of the ablest lawyers in the country.

Compulsory education was one of the subjects for discussion at the teachers' institute for Stark county, at the recent session held in Navarre. It is a question that must be met some day, and the sooner the better. In our country it may seem arbitary to resort to the forcing method of sending children to school. But what better can be done? There are thousands of children of proper age who are never sent to school, but are growing up in ignorance, receiving nothing but a street education, and that is the starting place for a bad end. A child that runs the streets learns nothing good—only evil and that continually. He soon finds access to low grogshops, and from these speedily graduates into a criminal of more or less magnitude. If compulsory education will tend to arrest this evil it should be enforced at the earliest possible period. Other countries have tried it, and so far as we can ascertain, with a fair degree of success. On our streets at almost any time can be found children who are running at large; perhaps playing the truant, or maybe are permitted to roam without care by their parents. Let such be broke in to attend school by energetic means, if need be, and if the place of education is made attractive they soon will find out that it is better to be there—and it need not be long ere they will deem it a pleasure. The streets of other places are similarly overran by these little pupils of evil, and in the aggregate they make a formidable body of ignorance, vice and crime. Here is where a great many of our criminals take their first degrees in the downward road to ruin. Starting wrong it is difficult to change their course; and they are not stationary in this direction, but like it is said of young wolves as they grow one day older they become two days worse. This is the aspect in which this question presents itself to many, and it is well to ventilate it by free discussion. Of course difficulties will have to be met and overcome, but they will melt away as the experiment progresses.

The Atlantic and Great Western Road managers are preparing to make that thoroughfare an efficient institution in the business of the country. New officers are appointed who have the reputation of being among the energetic railroad men of the times, and are preparing everything they possibly can to render this road a success. There is no reason why this important link between the east and west may not prove a source of profit to its owners, as it seems to have passed the crisis of its difficulties, and must now be on a solid basis.

Notwithstanding the many great losses sustained by the people of Chicago there is remarkable activity in the city, so that it is difficult to find laborers sufficient to perform the work that is desired to be done. There must be much suffering yet, but a great deal of that has been alleviated by the liberal contributions made from every quarter. Assistance is still going on, and it will be necessary for some time yet thus it be so. Among the liberal donations reported is one in the shape of an improved steam engine sent by the Buckeye Works at Salem, to the Chicago Tribune. If that is so it will prove one of the best advertisements that company ever got out.

Good bricklayers are receiving $4.50 a day at Chicago, and will probably have such wages all winter, if the weather at all permits. Even at this rate there was talk of a strike the other day. $27 a week is pretty big pay, and if a man cannot live at that rate he had better quite. It would not be advisable for mechanics or working men to rush there until they are specially asked to do so Let the workers there have the full benefit of good pay—they are the first entitled to it.

The abolition of slavery in Brazil has been consumated, but it is said the work is not very thorough. But a meager portion of the bondsmen are liberated. As the work has commenced it will not end until thoroughly accomplished. There is no stopping the wheels of progress in that direction. If the government dont speedily emancipate the entire body of slaves there will be trouble. Releasing but a portion will have a tendency to disaffect the rest who are yet restrained from their freedom. Brazil will have to do as the our government has done—totally annihilate slavery.

Thomas Ewing, Sr, died at his residence, in Lancaster, Ohio, on the 26th ult., aged about 82 years. Mr. E. was a leading politician many years ago, and held important positions in the government. As a whig he was elected by the Ohio legislature, in 1831—2 to the U. S. senate. When Gen Harrison was elected, in 1840, to the presidency he selected Mr. E. as secretary of the treasury, which place be filled a short time, and left the position on the disruption of the cabinet, because he refused to be Tylerized In 1849 president Taylor appointed him secretary of the interior, but Fillmore taking the presidency Mr. E. left that place. In 1850 he was a short time in the U. S. senate, since which time he retired from public life.

All the counties in Ohio have been heard from, and what purports to be the official result of the governor's election is reported as follows: The total vote was 460,463, of which Gen. Noyes, republican, received 238,273 votes, McCook, democrat, 218,105, and Stewart, prohibition, 4,085. Noyes majority over McCook 20,168—over both 16,085, which elects him. The republican increase over last year's vote was 16, 561, democratic increase 13,000, and prohibition 1,221. And this is called the off year in politics. In 1872 when congressmen, president and other high officers are to be chosen, Ohio will reach half a million votes.

The president has issued a proclamation for thanks-giving day, which is to take place Thursday, Nov. 30.

In an item last week we stated that three men were in a buggy, and according to the report we had of the circumstance they were all intoxicated. Unfortunately Leonard Smith was one of the party, and he claims to be a sober man, belongs to church, and indignantly denies that he was drunk The others who were in the carriage coaxed him in for a ride, and he consented. Mr. Smith tried to save the other man who did not fall out first, but the driver in tumbling out took the lines so the others had no control of the horse, and they jumped out and were considerably injured, but not very seriously. It is not safe to go with these fellows when they are tight, and we hope Mr. Smith will keep away from such hereafter.

On to-morrow at 10:30 o'clock a marriage will take place at St. Paul's Lutheran church, Rev. P. L. Buehl, pastor, at which time Mr. Henry Snyder and Miss Byers will be united in the bonds of matrimony, in accordance with the usages of that church. It is not customary to put such engagements in print before the wedding transpires, but we are requested to do so by one who has authority.

THE AMERICAN

Button-Hole, Overseaming

—AND—

Complete Sewing Machine.

The first and only Button-hole and Sewmachine combined that has made its advent in this or any other country.

☞The following reasons are given why this is the best

Family Machine to Purchase:

1. Because it will do everything that any machine can do, sewing from the finest to the coarsest material, hemming, felling, cording, braiding, binding, gathering and sewing on at the same time, ruffling, quilting, &c., better than any other machine.
2. Because the tensions are more easily adjusted than any other machine.
3. Because it can make a beautiful button hole, making as fine a pearl as by hand.
4. Because it will embroider over the edge, making a neat and beautiful border on any garment.
5. Because it will make a beautiful eyelet hole
6. Because it can do overhand seaming, by which sheets, pillow cases, and the like are sewed over and over.
7. Because you can quickly raise or lower the feed to adapt it to thick or thin cloth.
8. Because you have a short deep bobbin by which the thread is constantly drawn from the center; the tension is consequently even and does not break the thread.
9. Because the presser foot turns back; that the cloth can be easily removed after being sewed.
10. Because the best mechanics pronounce it the best finished and made on the best principle of any machine manufactured.
11. Because it has a better shuttle than any other machine.
12. Because it runs easier and quieter than any other heavy machine.
13. Because it is two machines in one—a button hole working and sewing machine combined.

It is to last a lifetime, and therefore one is wanted that will do the most work, and do it the best, and this machine can do several kinds of sewing not done on any other machine, besides doing every kind that all others can do.

The American or Plain Sewing Machine

Is a beautiful family and light manufacturing machine, possessing all the superior qualities of the combined machine, except making button holes and overseaming. In all other respects the principal of construction is the same.

These Machines are Warranted.

Please read the following letter from a reliable druggist?

Mt Vernon, Ill., April 20, 1871.

Messrs. J N Harris & Cincinnati, O.

Gentlemen—I heard one of my customers speak in such high terms of Allen's Lung Balsam to-day, that I thought I would write You the substance of his statement. He says his mother, who is now sixty years of age, has suffered with consumption for several years, and has been under the care of all our best physicians, but never received any permanent benefit, then she resorted to almost every kind of cough and lung balsam that could be procured for her, but all of no avail. She still grew worse, until she was confined to her bed: and when she was seized with a paroxysm of coughing she would lose the power of respiration, and they were compelled to resort to various means to restore breathing; and while she coughed so hard she could not expectorate anything and the family and friends had given up all hopes of her recovery. Her son noticed the advertisement of Allen's Lung Balsam in the Christian Advocate, and they thought they would procure and try it. They commenced giving her the balsam at 5 p m., as directed, a dose every hour until midnight; then she took another spell of coughing, and expectorated a mouthful of dark yellow matter, which was something she had not been able to do for some time. They continued to give her the balsam until morning and then she began to expectorate freely, and within three hours she had expectorated three pints of mucus matter, which gave her immediate relief, and since that time she has continued to improve. She now sits up all day, and can walk about the house and take considerable out-door exercise. Her son bought more of the balsam to-day, and he is recommending it very highly to every one. Your, respectfully,

A C JOHNSON, Druggist.

Was there ever greater proof of merit than the case this letter refers to?

Allen's Lung Balsam is without doubt the best expectorant remedy ever offered to the afflicted public. It contains no opium in any form, and its use is harmless to the most delicate. ☞Directions accompany each bottle. J N HARRIS & Co Proriotors. Cincinnati, O.

ONE MILLION OF LIVES

SAVED!

It is one of the remarkable facts of this remarkable age, not merely that so many persons are victims of dyspepia or indigestion, but its willing victims. Now we would not be understood to say that any one regards dyspepsiit with favor, or feels disposed to rank it among the luxuries of life. Far from it. Those who have experienced its torments would scout such an idea. All dread it, and would gladly dispense with its unpleasant familiarities. There are diseases more acute and painful, and which more frequently prove fatal; but none, the effects of which are more distressing to the body. If there is a wretched being in the world it is

A CONFIRMED DYSPEPTIC.

But it not our intention to discant on the horrors of dyspepsia. To describe them truthfully is simply an impossibility. We have said that dyspepsia is perhaps the most universal of human diseases. This is emphatically the case in the United States. Whether this general prevalence is due to the character of the food, the method of its preparation, or the hasty manner in which it is usually swallowed, is not our province to explain. The great fact with which we are called to deal is this:

DYSPEPSIA PREVAILS

Nearly every other person you meet is a victim, an apparently willing one; for were this not the case, why so many sufferers, when a certain, speedy and safe remedy is within the reach of all who desire to avail themselves of it? But says a dyspeptic, What is this remedy? to which we reply, This great alleviator of human suffering is almost as widely known as the English language. This acknowledged panacea is none other than

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

Would you know more of the merits of this wonderful medicine than can be learned from the experience of others? Try it yourself, and when it has failed to fulfill the assurance of its efficacy given by the proprietor, then abandon faith in it.

LET IT BE REMEMBERED

first of all, that Hoofland's German Bitters is not a rum beverage.

They are not alcoholic in any sense of the term. They are composed entirely of the pure juice or vital principle of roots. The extracts from which they are compounded are prepared by one of the ablest German chemists. The objections which hold with so much force against preparations of this class, namely—that a desire for intoxicating drinks is stimulated by their use, are not valid in case of the German Bitters. Their effects can be in all cases of the biliary system. Hoofland's German Bitters stand without an equal, acting promptly and vigorously on the liver; they remove its torpidity and cause healthful secretion of the bile. They impart vigor and strength to the entire system, causing the patient to feel like another being—in fact, giving him a new lease of life.

THEY PURIFY THE BLOOD,

cleansing the vital fluid of all hurtful impurities and supplanting them with the elements of genuine healthfulness. In a word, there is scarcely a disease in which they cannot be safely and beneficially employed; but in the generally prevalent distressing and dreaded disease, dyspepsia,

THEY STAND UNRIVALED.

Now, there are certain classes of persons to whom expreme bitters are not only unpalatable, but who find it impossible to take them without positive discomfort. For such has been prepared. It is intended for use where a slight alcoholic stimulant is required. This tonic contains all the ingredients of the bitters, but so flavored as to remove the extreme bitterness.

HOOFLAND'S TONIC

acts with almost marvelous effect. It not only stimulates the flagging and wasting energies, but invigorates and permanently strengthens its action upon the liver and stomach thorough, perhaps less prompt than the Bitters, when the same quality is taken is none the less certain. Indigestion, biliousness, physical or nervous prostration, yield readily to its potent influence. It gives strength to weakness, throws despondency to the winds, and starts the restored invalid upon a new and glad-some career. But Dr. Hoofland's benefactions to the human race are not confined to his celebrated or his invaluable Tonic. He has prepared another medicine, which is rapidly winning its way to popular favor because of its intrinsic merits. This is a perfect substitute for mercury, without any of mercury's evil qualities.

GERMAN BITTERS,

These wonderful pills which are intended to act upon the liver, are mainly composed of Podophyllin, or the

VITAL PRINCIPLE OF MANDRAKE ROOT.

Now we desire the reader to distinctly understand that this extract of the Mandrake is many times more powerful than the Mandrake itself. It is the medical virtues of this health giving plant in a perfectly pure and highly concentrated form. Hence it is that two of the Podophyllin pills constitute a full dose, while any where six to eight or a handful of other preparations of the Mandrake are required. The Podophyllin stimulating its functions and causing it to make its biliary secretions in regular and proper quantities. The injurious results which invariably follow the use of mercury is entirely avoided by their use.

Possessing desirable qualities, the Podophyllin becomes invaluable as a

FAMILY MEDICINE

No household shou'd be without them. They are perfectly safe, require but two for an ordinary dose are prompt and efficient in action, and when used in connection with Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, or Tonic, may be regarded as certain specifics in all cases of liver complaint dyspepsia, or any of the disorders to which the system is ordinarily subject. The act upon the stomach and bowels, carrying off improper obstructions, while the Bitters or Tonic purify the blood.

DR. HOOFLAND'S GREEK OIL

LOCAL MATTERS.

According to the plan adopted by the Massillon S S Teachers Institute order of proceedings for November will be as follows. Address—The Historic Books of the Old Testament, by Rev. E. Hingeley. Lecture—What are the best methods of studying the Bible? by Prof. E. A. Jones. Essay—The Teacher's meetings—how best maintained, by Mrs. E. Metz. Question drawer. Time of meeting on Tuesday evening next.

In accordance with the request of a circular from the Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Associations of the United States and British Provinces, the Young Men's Christian Association of Massillon will hold a religious service in the Presbyterian church, on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 12, 1871, at three o'clock, for the blessing of God upon the efforts put forth by these localities throughout the United States and British Provinces, and upon all efforts for the salvation of young men. All persons are cordially invited to participate. 2t

The Presbyterian church social will meet at the residence of James Neal, on Thursday evening of the present week. All are invited.

About this season of the year it is customary for magazines and leading newspapers, to set forth their highest claims for public patronage. That is well, for the time of the year seems to be appropriate for such appeals, and the public being used to it manifests a disposition to respond more liberally. While all this is going on in behalf of the numerous applicants for public favor in various parts of the country, let it not be forgotten by our people that the INDEPENDENT is entitled to some consideration. Thus far we have been sustained by the partiality of our patrons to a fair extent, both in subscription to the paper, advertising and job work, and we hope to merit a continuance of the same. It shall be our effort to give value received for the generous patronage extended toward us. Assidious and unceasing labor is required to perform our part of the contract, but we willingly undergo this with the idea that our efforts in behalf of the interests of this community are not in vain. Our theory and practice should be to sustain home interests first, and then if there is sufficient margin left contribute a mite toward patronizing other places. Of course we can't limit or prescribe what our people ought to do in this matter, but merely suggest, leaving them to act their own good judgment.

Brick Pomeroy makes a good hit when he says, it's very hard for many men to pay their school taxes—after their whisky bills have been settled. That sort of men don't all live in New York state.

Mrs. Swisshelm, a distinguished woman as editor of different papers, and lively correspondent of others, is said to be now preaching for a Baptist church somewhere in P nnsylvania.

A young man, Joseph Bowers, carpenter, fell some fifteen feet from the roof of a building belonging to Mr. Cunningham, on Main street near the railroad, on last Wednesday, & was so injured by falling across a fence, on his back, that the case is considered a critical one. His back is not broken as we learn but so badly wounded that the result is very doubtful.

Persons seeking pleasant, agreeable and desirable homes will do well to see Mr S. B. Marsh's advertisement, which appears in to-day's paper. Seldom are such opportunities offered as are here described, for the property lies in a healthy location, the soil excellent, and is underlaid pretty certainly with abundant mineral riches. The time of sale is near at hand, so bidders had better examine the premises soon.

Mr. Bruce of this place, who is familiar with the doings of the C & P R R, as he was for some time one of the conductors on that road, says that Mr. Lynn is in error as to his statement about there being no Bibles on the cars. Mr B says they are to be found in every express and traveling car on the road. A traveler might be mistaken about this matter—a conductor cannot.

Work is actively going on upon the northern end of the T V R R, as is stated by the Medina Gazette and the Cleveland papers. A large force of men are placing ties and laying rails, so that Medina will soon be visited by the steam horse. Contractors are soon to be at work on the southern portion, and it is not probable many months will elapse until we see active operations going on here.

Railroad Survey.—The surveyors are now engaged in locating the Lake Shore & Tuscarawas Valley Railroad, south of Massillon. They had reached the Falls of Sugar Creek, on Saturday night last, and expected to reach New Philidelphia by the last of this week. It was the intention of the contractor to sublet as much of the road as was located by the 25th. The last subletting was done on the 25th of September.—Tuscarawas Advocate.

Rev P I Buehl, the writer of Reply, &c. has left at this office a somewhat protracted article intended for a reply to a criticism signed Canton, which appeared last week. We will try to make room for it in time.

Those light but welcome showers with which we were favored last week were followed by a shining Sunday and Monday—dry as ever. The fountains of heaven will break loose some day—if not, we shall have a long dry spell.

Quite a lot of types of the latest styles were received at this office the other day, which increases our facilities for doing job work. We shall not have them long until their i's and o's will be blacked, of course in a friendly way, and to the supreme benefit of those for whom this darkening proves well be performed.

In an ordinary way about this season of the year there are a good many sale bills printed, but thus far this fall comparatively few have made their appearance. Which looks as if our people have concluded to not emigrate as much as they used to. None of our neighbors that we can see are over run with sale bills just now. Perhaps the great fires in the west have something to do with this thing.

Our customers find it very convenient to look up pieces of job work which we have done for them, sometimes, and as we keep a regular file of all such transactions the object sought is easily found.

This seems to be a good year for hickory nuts as well as chestnuts, as both are plenty in the market here. The grape trade is pretty about over this time.

Without consulting the almanacs, or even taking note of time by our watches and clocks, it is plain to see that the days are shortening up at both ends, and in but few weeks the long nights will be at the "height of their acme." Therefore as a logical sequence, it is a good time for lots of those people who take no paper to subscribe for the INDEPENDENT. We shall try to keep up our end of the swingletree, and post this community as to what is going on among us, and especially to advocate the interests of the city, while the moral welfare will not be overlooked. As to the theology now ventilating itself in these columns, we shall give it in more homeopathic doses than heretofore, alternating with a similar length of room for the other side. Then, as the Irishman said to the traveler about the leagues in Patland, they are long but very narrow—so of this windy discussion, if it is not very broad it may make up in length.

"It is an ill with that blows nobody some good," as the old woman said. The great Chicago fire has already waked into existence we know not how many pamphlets and little books. Mr. C. F. Vent, 38 West 4th st, Cincinnatti, proposes to issue a comprehensive work on the subject, which shall embrace a history of the city from the beginning, with a vast enumeration of particulars, including the great fire. A number of fine illustrations will accompany the work, which will add to its value. Mr. V. is a reliable publisher, and announces as authors of the forthcoming work Messrs Colbert & Chamberlain, of the Tribune editorial staff. Mr. I. S. Crooks is local agent for Massillon.

The Union Publishing Co. of Chicago, also propose to print a book of somewhat like character, which will be edited by Geo P. Upton and Jas. W. Sheahan, both represented as editors of the same Tribune. It will contain some 350 pages. Price, $2.50. The Publishers want agents.

Cheap Dick and Honest Pete have been making our streets echo with their eloquence for several days, eulogizing and selling cheap goods. Whether their purchasers are also sold or not remains to be ascertained on a trial of the goods in which they invested. Sometimes this apparent cheapness is all well, but it often proves a sham. We don't say its so in this case—time will test that matter. We have regular merchants here, reliable men, whose interests are identified with the place, and they are entitled to our patronage and to a living in keeping for sale goods for the community in which they reside. Transient peddlars take all the money they can get and carry it off elsewhere.

Nast has produced an almanac. He is the man who gets up those popular pictures in Harper's Weekly, and his almanac is of like character—full of fun which strikes the eye right square. Josh Billings is out too in the shape of an almanac, and his quaintly expressed philosophy marks its pages all the way through. Both for sale at the opera house news depot.

Bro Brown, proprietor of the Alliance Monitor accompanied his wife, Mrs. M. M. Brown, who delivered that excellent temperance lecture on last Sunday, in this place. In the evening he preached at the M. E. church to a full house. Bro B. is a zealous and earnest minister, and in addition to his clerical services is a faithful worker for temperance.

On Sunday last a good sized audience had the satisfaction of listening to an excellent temperance lecture by Mrs. Brown of Alliance, in Good Templars Hall. All who listened to it express themselves very highly pleased, as was indicated by the close attention paid to every word that was uttered. Mrs. B. has for years taken a prominent part in the temperance reform, and judging from her lecture, has been a keen observer of this progress, and the nature of the opposition with which it has to contend. Notwithstanding the many real and apparent obstacles in the pathway of this much needed reform she expresses herself hopefully, and even in a sanguine spirit, of ultimate success. Much stress was laid on the idea that where there is a will there is a way. This is one of the great secrets of prosperity in any enterprise, and the lecturer evinces good judgment in making this strong point. Half hearted indifference is a drawback to any good work—nothing less than an earnest will and decided resolution will prevail. This point cannot be too strongly urged by temperance lecturers and writers, if they would prove of efficiency. The question to be asked by such reformers is not, What are others doing in the work? but what am I doing? Many other points were discussed in equal earnestness, clearness and power, and all clothed in fine language, such as is seldom listened to by our people or elsewhere. Mrs. B's. addresses are always listened to as there are no half steps taken in any direction, but decided, earnest, emphatic positions are put forth with that clearness that knows no doubt.

These meetings on Sunday afternoons are an experiment with us, and this last was the second effort, which was so successful that we are encouraged to press onward with the work. Another meeting was announced which is to take place on Sunday, Nov. 12. Efforts will be made to secure the attendance of some speaker who will command attention; for the object is to not only interest but to instruct those who come to hear. We hope that the many sympathizers in the cause in our community will feel such interest in the work that they will come to the aid of the band of temperance workers among us.

STARK CO. TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

Pursuant to a call from the Executive Committee, the Stark Co. Teachers Association met in Navarre, on Monday the 16th ult., for the purpose of holding an Institute through the week. The attendance was unusually large, over one hundred and fifty teachers being present from different parts of the county. Sessions were held during the forenoon, afternoon and evening of each day. Instruction in penmanship was given by E Smith, of Canton; in English Grammar by Supt Dressler, of Alliance; in Geography and History by Supt Jones, of Massillon; in Theory and Practice by Supt Worley, of Canton; in Geography and Arithmetic by Alex Forbes, of Cleveland, and Prof. J A Brush, of Mt. Union College. Able addresses were delivered in the evening by Messrs. Worley, Forbes, and Brush. Also animated discussions upon various topics were participated in by different members of the association, and citizens of the place. Prominent among the subjects discussed were Compulsory Education, The Merits of our Common Schools, and School Discipline.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Pres W H Dressler; Vice Pres, Sara Hoxworth, Annie McKinley and J K James; Sec M A Troutman; Treas, J H Lehman; Ex Com, E A Jones and J A Brush.

The greatest harmony and interest prevailed during the entire Institute, and all pronounced it a complete success. Evidently the teachers of Stark Co. are awakening to the interests and the cause of education. It is hoped that parents and school boards will also become alive to the same interests, and lend their support to the work.

The following action of the association is especially addressed to the Boards of Education throughout the county, with the hope that it may meet with due consideration.

WHEREAS, It is highly important that all teachers should attend the Institute, and

WHEREAS, The benefit received by them in such attendance redounds to the immediate benefit of the children in the schools, therefore

Resolved, That the Stark Co. Teachers Association hereby request the various school boards in our county to give the teachers the Institute week, without deduction of pay, upon condition that they faithfully attend all the exercises of the Institute.

The next Institute will be held at Waynsburg, beginning on Monday, Oct 14, 1872.

The Atlantic Monthly for November opens with a literary article by E. C. Steadman on Tennyson and Theocritus. The Bedlams of Stamboul by Dr. W. Goodell, cannot but interest the inquiring reader concerning many curious customs about the Turkish treatment of the insane. Kate Beaumont, the Sphynx, Wayside Pikes, Watch and Ward, California Saved, the New Light, their Wedding Journey, our Whispering Gallery, are the titles of other articles by distinguished writers of prose and poetry. The Atlantic continues to be one of the leading magazines of these times, a position to which it is well entitled. J. R. Osgood & Co., Boston.

Peters' Musical Monthly for November has no less than fourteen pieces of choice vocal and instrumental music, occupying 36 pages with a fair amount of reading matter—all for 30 cents. That is as cheap as a good article in that way can be had. J. L. Peters, N.Y.

THE

PRICE, $3.50.

The American Washer saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no longer dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting. It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a quilt to a lace curtain or cambric handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of the Little Gem! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once become fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price another paramount inducement to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this great labor saver, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly. Sole agents for the United States,

Trust what Time has sanctioned

The maxim that the voice of the people is the voice of the divinity, may in some cases, be open to doubt, but the testimony of honest and enlightened witnesses extending through a series of years, and all to the same purport, is worthy of credence, admits of no question. Upon such testimony the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as antidote and cure for many ailments is based During the twenty years that it has been before the world, innumerable preparations intended to compete with it, have gone up like rockets, and come down the extinguished sticks. Meanwhile the progress of that incomparable tonic has been swift and steady—always onward and upward like the eagle's flight. Its introduction produces a revolution in therapeutics, and it proved to be one of those salutary revolutions that cannot go backwards. To day Hostetter's Bitters is one of the most popular remedies in christendom, and commands a larger sale than any other medicinal preparation, domestic or imported, on this side of the Atlantic. As a cure for dyspepsia, bilious disorders, nervous affections, general debility, and as a preventive of epidemic fevers, it takes precedence of every remedy. This fact should teach the ambitious country dealers who endeavor to foist their local abortions on the public in its stead, how futile their small attempts to cajole the community must necessarily be. Where the game fish have failed there is no chance for the "suckers."

A Woman's Pilgrimage.

To the Holy Land, by Mrs S M Griswold. This latest work of this popular authoress, is an interesting narrative of her

TEA DRINKERS.

After many revelations recently published on the adulteration of tea, or tea drinkers ought to be prepared for worse news than that they are, according to the discovery of a French servant, consuming a quantity of leather in their favorite beverage sufficient, in the course of a year, for the manufacture of a stout pair of boots. The consumption of this wholesome article of food is not confined to the drinkers of 'lie-tea,' but includes even such as indulge in the most costly and genuine qualities, supposing them to mix the beverage with milk and cream. It is to this most innocuous draught of drinks that we are indebted for the addition to our cherished evening draught of an ingredient proverbial for indigestibility.

Tea leaves contain a proportion of tannic acid, which in the liquid state if suspended in solution. Milk, on the other hand, contains a proportion of white of egg, and the two constituents being the main ingredients of leather readily combine on mixing the fluids, adding by the globules of leather like substance which they form to the opacity of the compound liquid. We do not apprehend that this discovery will deter any of our readeas from taking their accustomed allowance of tea. It may possibly, by the scientific explanation of the process, even add a new relish to their enjoyment.

Sometimes our friends, during their absence, bring themselves to mind by sending their presents.

One can no more judge of the true value of man by the impression he makes on the public, than we can tell whether the seal was gold or brass by which the stamp was made.

A Milwaukee woman, whose husband had been persecuted to death by a creditor, married the creditor and persecuted him to death in less than six months. Time sets things even.

'Do you think,' asked Mrs Pepper, 'that a little temper is a bad thing in a woman?' 'Certainly not, ma'am,' replied a gallant philosopher; 'it is a good thing, and she never ought to lose it.'

The severest thing said against Eve's daughters was by Lady Mary Wortly Montague: 'The only satisfaction I have in being a woman is that I shall not be compelled to marry one of my own sex.

'Why, Uncle Johnny,' said his friend 'can you afford to eat shad at twenty-five cents a pound?' 'Well, no,' said Johnny reflectively, but I can put him in mine ice chest and keep him until he gets cheaper.'

Mrs. Jones says: 'I believe I've got the tenderest hearted boys in the world. I can't tell one of them to fetch me a bucket of water but he'll burst out crying.'

A John Chinaman had heard the quotation: 'We have piped unto you, but ye have not danced,' and thus reproduced it: 'We have toot tooted to you, why you no makee jumpee?'

Man was never intended to be idle; inactivity frustrates the very design of his creation: whereas an active life is the best guardian of virtue, and the greatest preservation of health.

Two little girls of eight and ten years old, were discussing the question of wearing earrings. One thought it wicked. The other was sure it could not be, for so many good people wear them. The other replied; 'Well, I don't care, it it wasn't wicked God would have made holes in our ears.'

A young man just married, being congratulated on his marriage, was asked where he married his wife. He answered 'in Reading.' 'Ah!' spoke up a neighbor, with deep feeling, 'those Reading gals make clever wives; I have had three of 'em.

A man who was told by a clergyman to 'Remember Lot's wife,' replied that he had trouble enough with his own, without remembering other men's wives.

During the late war, Dr. ——, entering the hospital, met Paddy Doyle, the orderly, and asked him which he considered the most dangerous of the many cases in hospital. 'That, sir,' said Paddy, as, with an indicative jerk of the thumb he pointed to where, on the table, lay a case of surgical instruments.

A committee of eight gentlemen had an appointment to meet at twelve o'clock. Seven of them were punctual but the eighth came blustering in with apologies for being a quarter of an hour behind time. "The time," said he, "passed away without my being aware of it. I had no idea of its being so late," &c. A quaker present said, "I am not sure that we should admit thy excuse. It were a matter of regret that thou shouldst have wasted thine own quarter of an hour, but there are seven besides thyself, whose time thou hast also consumed, amounting in the whole to two hours, and one eighth of it only was thine own property.

Eclectic Physician,

Has located himself at Massillon, O., for the treatment of Female & Chronic Diseases.

Office east of the Park, second door of Mr. Falke's new building.

All consultations and examinations of patients made free of charge.

Dr. Long examines and explains your disease without asking any questions. If he understands your case you know it, and cannot be deceived. If he cannot tell your disease, and how you feel without asking questions he does not consider himself competent to treat your case. This is the criterion to go by, and patients should not be satisfied with any other. This is the only direct and positive evidence of my ability as a scientific physician, and by this standard I am willing to be judged.

A proper diagnosis of local disease, without constitutional symptoms, that is, not affecting the system generally, must depend upon the judgment of both patient and physician.

Give Dr. Long a call, and satisfy yourselves whether he understands your cases sufficiently well to treat them successfully.

Dr. Long may be consulted in the German and English languages. Address letters, Manhood; how Lost, how Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. CULVERWELL'S Celebrated Essay on the radical cure, without medicine, of Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal weakness, involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance.

Price in a sealed envelope only six cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, postpaid on receipt of six cents or two post stamps.

Also, Dr. Culverwell's "marriage Guide," price 25 cents.

Continues to treat all private diseases, syphilis in all its forms, gonorrhœa, gleet, stricture, orchitis, and all urinary diseases, and the effects of mercury are completely eradicated; spermatorrhea or seminal weakness and impotency, resulting from self abuse or other causes, and which produce some of the following effects, as blotches, bodily weakness, indigestion, consumption, aversion to society, unmanliness, dread of future events, loss of memory, indolence, nocturnal emissions, and finally so prostrating the sexual system as to render marriage unsatisfactory, and therefore imprudent, are permently cured.

It is self evident that the physician who confines himself exclusively to the study of a certain class of diseases and treats thousands of cases every year must acquire a greater skill in that speciality than one in general practice.

The establishment, comprising ten ample rooms, is central. When it is not convenient to visit the city, the doctor's opinion can be obtained by giving a written statement of the case, and medicines can be sent by mail or express.

The doctor publishes a medical pamphlet of fifty pages that gives a full exposition of venereal and private diseases that can be had free at office or by mail, in sealed envelope, for two stamps. Every sentence contains instruction to the afflicted, and enabling them to determine the precise nature of their complaints.
